List websites that advertise or promote 'Church Growth" seminars throughout all sects of Christianity.

I have gathered substantial information about church growth seminars and conferences across various Christian denominations and traditions. Let me now compile this into a comprehensive report.

Websites That Advertise Church Growth Seminars Across Christian Denominations

Church growth seminars and leadership training programs are widely promoted across numerous Christian traditions, ranging from evangelical and Pentecostal movements to mainline Protestant, Catholic, and Orthodox communities. These platforms serve pastors, church staff, and lay leaders seeking practical strategies for congregational development, leadership enhancement, and organizational effectiveness. The following analysis identifies key websites and organizations that advertise such programs across denominational lines.

Interdenominational and Nondenominational Platforms

Several organizations transcend denominational boundaries, offering church growth training accessible to leaders from diverse Christian backgrounds. Church Growth Network provides customized consulting, coaching, and workshops designed to help churches expand their reach and develop leadership capacity. The organization offers half-day and full-day training seminars on topics tailored to specific congregational needs.[1] [2]

Church Growth Workshops operates as a comprehensive training library featuring ongoing workshops, summits, and resources from various church growth experts. The platform addresses mental health concerns in congregations, technology integration in ministry, and artificial intelligence applications for church operations. Similarly, Building Church Leaders from Christianity Today offers online leadership training for church staff, providing resources for board development, volunteer management, and personal leadership growth.[3] [1]

The Global Leadership Summit, originally founded by Bill Hybels at Willow Creek Community Church, has become one of the premier leadership conferences in North America. Despite controversies surrounding its founder, the summit continues to attract thousands of leaders annually, broadcasting to over 800 sites worldwide with both in-person and online attendance options. The 2025 summit features speakers like Craig Groeschel and Christine Caine, focusing on innovation, creativity, and collaborative leadership.[4] [5] [6] [7] [8]

Exponential Conference represents the largest gathering of church planting leaders globally. Held annually in Orlando, Florida, this multi-day event emphasizes church multiplication, discipleship strategies, and outreach innovation. The 2026 conference will feature workshops on team-based church planting, recruiting high-capacity leaders, and engaging young adults.[9] [10] [11] [12] [4]

Evangelical and Megachurch-Affiliated Programs

Prominent megachurch pastors have developed extensive training ecosystems that influence thousands of congregations. Rick Warren's Purpose Driven resources, including the CLASS discipleship program (Belong, Grow, Serve, Share), have been implemented in churches worldwide for over 35 years. Warren's "Building a Purpose-Driven Church" workshops focus on transitioning congregations toward health-driven growth models. His approach emphasizes multiple services, strategic staffing, and cultural relevance.[13] [14] [15] [16]

Andy Stanley, senior pastor of North Point Community Church, offers leadership resources through his podcast, online libraries, and conferences. North Point Ministries provides free content and practical tools for church leaders, emphasizing systems-oriented leadership and organizational effectiveness.[17] [18] [19]

The Art of Leadership Academy, created by Carey Nieuwhof, offers "The Art of Church Growth" course—a comprehensive program addressing barriers to church expansion. The course features 16 sessions covering topics such as scaling pastoral care, recruiting leaders, combating irregular attendance, and managing organizational change. Participants receive strategies for identifying and eliminating growth obstacles, with options for individual enrollment ($347) or all-access membership ($497 annually).[20] [21]

The ARC Conference (Association of Related Churches) serves church planters and ministry teams through multiple annual gatherings across North America. The 2026 conference in Charleston, South Carolina, will celebrate 25 years of church planting ministry, providing relationship-building opportunities and resources for sustainable church development.[10] [22] [9]

Baptist Traditions

Southern Baptist Convention entities maintain robust church growth and leadership development infrastructure. The North American Mission Board's Send Network represents North America's largest church-planting initiative, having helped establish over 11,000 churches since 2010, with 767 new plants in 2024 alone. Send Network reports that more than 80% of affiliated church plants remain viable after four years, indicating healthy development practices.[23] [24]

The Leavell Center for Evangelism and Church Health at New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary assists Southern Baptist churches in developing effective evangelism strategies and measurable growth. The SBC Pastors' Conference includes specialized micro-conferences for worship leaders, discipleship coordinators, student ministers, and children's ministry leaders, hosted by Lifeway and other denominational entities.[25] [26]

American Baptist Churches offer the Leadership Training Academy, providing theological and pastoral training for lay leaders, associate ministers, and lay pastors who cannot pursue traditional seminary education. The flexible program includes certificates in enrichment, leadership, and pastoral studies, covering topics from biblical interpretation to church administration.[27]

Pentecostal and Charismatic Networks

Pentecostal denominations emphasize Spirit-empowered growth strategies through specialized conferences and training programs. The Church of God in Christ (COGIC) hosts quarterly Church Growth and Development Webinars featuring Bishop Hennings and the Church Growth Team. COGIC maintains a dedicated website (churchgrowthcogic.org) offering a "toolbox for church growth" with courses on writing, finances, marriage ministry, and church planting.[28]

The Pentecostal Churches of the Apostolic Faith International (PCAFI) conducts an annual GROWTH Conference, with the 68th International Holy Convocation held in Toronto in July 2025. Regional conferences also occur, including the Greater Mountain State Conference Church Growth events.[29] [30] [31]

Assemblies of God denominations provide extensive credentialing pathways through programs like the Vanguard University School of Ministry, which offers online courses for Certified, Licensed, and Ordained ministerial levels. The SoCal Network hosts Leadership Summits designed to inspire and equip pastors, staff, and ministry teams. The Assemblies of God Coaching Coalition trains credentialed coaches who work with church leaders to enhance effectiveness.[32] [33] [34] [35]

Catholic Leadership Development

Catholic organizations have developed sophisticated leadership formation programs rooted in theological education and servant leadership principles. The Catholic Leadership Institute provides bishops, priests, religious, deacons, and lay persons with pastoral leadership formation and consulting services. Programs like "Good Leaders, Good Shepherds" and "Tending the Talents" combine online learning, classroom sessions, and practical ministry application.[36] [37]

The Discerning Leadership Program, based in Rome, supports Church leaders through formation, accompaniment, professional coaching, and resources that foster synodal, effective leadership consistent with Christ's model of authority. The program integrates human formation, management skills, and Catholic spiritual tradition.[38]

Tepeyac Leadership Initiative offers a five-month, 18-session program for Catholic professionals focused on applying Church teachings to career contexts. The program includes The Hour of the Laity, a global leadership conference advancing the mission of the Church in secular society.[39]

Mainline Protestant Organizations

Mainline denominations have established networks to address declining membership through renewal and revitalization strategies. The Presbyterian Church Growth Network (PCGN) functions as a national learning community for leaders across the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) committed to faithful and healthy church growth. Presbyterians for the Kingdom hosts conferences focused on holiness, orthodoxy, perseverance, and evangelism, including a 2026 national conference in Hilton Head Island, South Carolina.[40] [41]

The Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA) offers monthly network webinars on faith-based community organizing and mission-focused ministry. The Lutheran Leadership Development Program, administered by the International Lutheran Council in cooperation with Concordia Theological Seminary, provides a two-year certificate program developing confessional Lutheran leaders globally.[42] [43]

United Methodist resources include the Lewis Center Church Leadership Certificate Program at Wesley Theological Seminary, offering online, cohort-based learning for pastors in strategic leadership areas including visioning, stewardship, and innovation.[44]

Church of the Nazarene and Holiness Traditions

The Church of the Nazarene holds quadrennial General Assemblies alongside regional conferences and district assemblies. The Eurasia Regional Conference 2025, for example, gathers Nazarenes for inspirational worship, motivational teaching, workshops, and fellowship celebrating God's work in diverse contexts. Individual districts host annual assemblies and leadership development events.[45] [46]

Nazarene institutions like Olivet Nazarene University and Northwest Nazarene University serve as host sites for the Global Leadership Summit, providing access to premier leadership training for their regions.[47] [48]

Orthodox Christian Leadership

Orthodox traditions have developed hybrid learning programs combining theological education with practical leadership training. St. Vladimir's Orthodox Theological Seminary offers a Master of Arts in Orthodox Christian Leadership Studies—a part-time, distance-learning program completed over four years. Students study Scripture, church history, patristics, and theology while receiving instruction in servant leadership, team building, vision casting, and financial management.[49] [50]

The Orthodox Christian Leadership Initiative (OCLI) nurtures and empowers Orthodox Christian servant leadership through programs like the Summer Leadership Institute, a seven-day event preparing Christ-centered young leaders. The initiative provides coaching, resources, and networking opportunities for clergy and laity.[51] [52] [49]

African American Denominations

Historically Black denominations maintain active leadership training infrastructures. The African Methodist Episcopal Church (AME) hosts Connectional Leadership Training Institutes across its episcopal districts. The 2025 institute in Atlanta featured discovery labs, panel discussions on youth mental health, visionary workshops on financial literacy and worship arts, and recognition ceremonies.[53] [54]

The African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church conducts annual Leadership Training Institutes across its regions, including the Mid-Atlantic Episcopal District's virtual and in-person sessions. The AME Church's Christian Education Department offers CED Talks—webinars on faith formation and leader development themes—as resources for the teaching ministry.[54] [55] [56]

Seventh-day Adventist Networks

The General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists hosts Leadership Development Conferences for current leaders, featuring presentations on what it means to be a leader in the SDA Church, leading with mission focus, ethics and integrity, and avoiding leadership pitfalls. Breakout sessions cover specific ministry areas including youth, education, publishing, stewardship, and health ministries.[57]

AdventSource coordinates regional youth and young adult leadership summits, providing training for leaders of Adventurers, Pathfinders, and campus ministries. The Southern Union Conference Church Growth Department supports local conferences and pastors with evangelism training, church revitalization resources, and church planting assistance.[58] [59]

Specialized and Emerging Networks

Several specialized organizations address niche leadership development needs. Propel Conference brings leadership teams together for multi-day experiences focusing on inspiration and innovation for church growth. Church Leaders Conference (CLC) at Watermark Community Church in Dallas equips church leaders with practical tools and biblical encouragement, featuring specialized tracks for various ministry roles.[60] [61] [9]

ChurchBiz Conferences emphasize practical strategies for enhancing church operations and outreach, offering five different dates and locations throughout 2025 with identical speakers and sessions. BLDRS Conference in Baltimore provides hands-on workshops on discipleship models, creative outreach, stewarding growth, and pastoral health.[4]

The C3 Conference at Fellowship Church in Grapevine, Texas, targets pastors and staff members seeking to creatively advance the church and transform culture, with a new C3 Academy intensive session available as an add-on.[62] [10]

Conclusion

Church growth seminars and leadership conferences span the entire spectrum of Christian traditions, from highly programmatic megachurch models to theologically grounded denominational programs. While evangelical and nondenominational networks tend toward pragmatic, numbers-focused growth strategies, mainline Protestant, Catholic, and Orthodox approaches emphasize theological formation, spiritual depth, and missional engagement.

The proliferation of online platforms, hybrid learning models, and regional conference networks has democratized access to leadership training, enabling small and mid-sized congregations to benefit from resources previously available only to well-funded organizations. Whether through established denominational channels, independent training networks, or celebrity pastor platforms, church leaders across all Christian traditions now have unprecedented access to growth-focused educational resources tailored to their theological convictions and ministry contexts.
